Application Notes:

OPI Products, a leader in the cosmetics industry, looked to Scientific Dust Collectors for a solution for their plant located in North Hollywood, California. They were having problems with dust control in the area around their packaging stations. During this process, fine dust was migrating to the other areas and processes within the plant. To eliminate this problem, pick-ups were improved and ducted to a collector inside the building. This eliminated the dust in other processes and even reduced clean up time around the packaging stations.
